today's sweet nothing

10-20-06 MADE IN CANADA

We know your secret. No one - not even Bob and Doug Mackenzie donning beaver hats and drinking a 2-4 of Molson's - could be any more Canadian than you. But nothing stirs your patriotic side like fresh Canadian fashion.

So it was with glowing hearts that we checked out Hum Clothing, the latest SoMa boutique dedicated to bringing the best of Canadian design to our closets (to hang chicly above our hockey bags, of course).

We found plenty to stand on guard with, from familiar designers like Lisa Greenbaum and Allison Wonderland and several West Coast newcomers.

We started with the so-soft-you-gotta-touch-it unicorn zip-up sweater ($112) from Bodybag, snapped up super-cute graphic knitwear turtle-, V- and scoop-neck sweaters ($160) and vests ($105) from Majolie, and then we wrapped ourselves in one of Valerie Dumaine's luscious coats ($189-$260). But we couldn't leave without the Henrietta bag ($155) crafted from an Italian military blanket by Jack and Marjorie.

With so many talented designers packed into one great store, is it any surprise cross-border shopping has lost its luster?
